AGENT-GENERAL OF B. C. DIED IN LONDON

LITTLE NEWS OF EVENTS IN DISTURBED SPAIN REACHING WORLD THROUGH CENSORSHIP

Opinion Held in Well-informed Circles in Paris Affairs in Very Critical State; Forty-two Persons Arrested by French at Border After Anti-Government Attempt; Rivera, Military Dictator, is in Morocco With Army Ibanez is Against Him.

Paris, Nov. 10.—That the situation in Spain is by no means as happy as Spanish official circles wish the outside world to believe is the opinion held in well-informed quarters here. A censorship so effective that only the most meagre news seeps through is in operation, but it is pointed out that the forty-two persons arrested along the border by French authorities after the sanguinary affray at Vera, in the Spanish province of Navarra, were picked up at both extremities of the frontier and this is taken to indicate the existence of a concerted movement in relation to the troubles in Barcelona, timed to start simultaneously in several places. Both the Spanish constitutional opposition and the public parties condemn the movement, which seems to be syndicalistic. It is obviously not directed against the life of General Primo de Rivera, the Spanish Premier and Military Dictator, as he is in Morocco with his army, opposing the rebel tribesmen.

French secret service officials, however, are convinced that the Spaniards arrested at Perpignan, Banyuls and Hendaye were concerned in a plot against the military dictatorship.

ATTITUDE OF IBANEZ
In a statement in Le Matin, Vincente Ibanez, the Spanish nationalist, who recently declared his opposition to the Rivera regime, characterizes the present movement as "absurd and criminal—absurd because it has no chance to succeed and criminal because it has caused useless loss of life."

He adds that it is the doing of a handful of anarchists, who must not be confounded in any way with the Republican movement.

BY PAID AGITATORS
Manifestations, Senator Ibanez says, were directed from Paris, probably by paid agitators and papers stamped with a forged seal of the Barcelona General Labor Federation were found on some of the persons arrested. He says: "I am vexed and distressed by these sanguinary disorders and I am most anxious to make clear that we are in no way involved in them."

HENRY CABOT LODGE, U.S. SENATOR, DIED
Second Operation Within Few Months Was Cause of Leader's Death
Was Seventy-four Years Old; Member of Senate Thirty-one Years

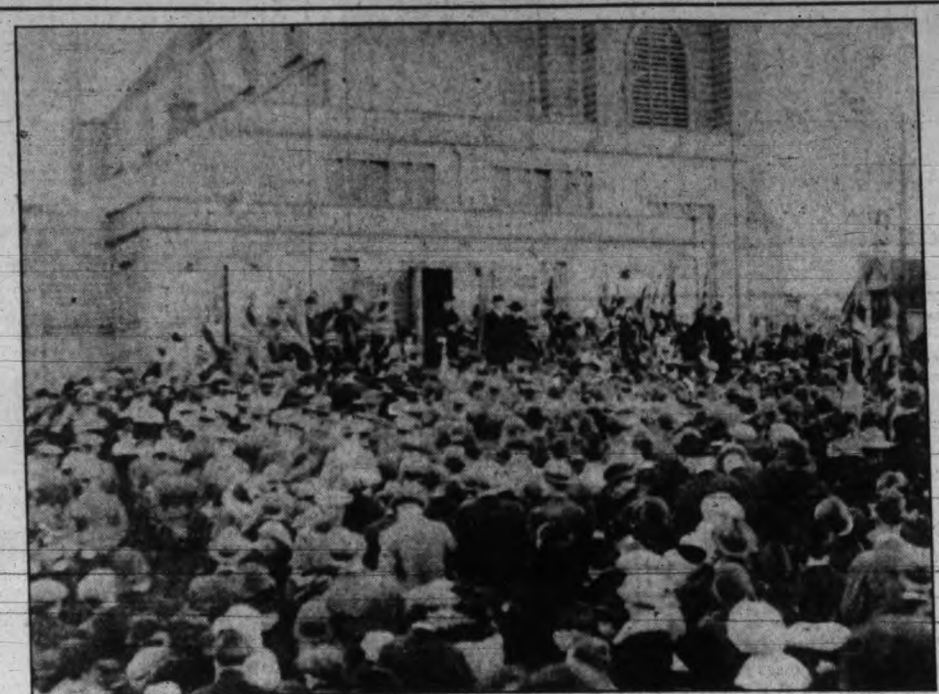

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 10.—Henry Cabot Lodge, Senator from Massachusetts, Republican and leader of the Senate, who served in the Senate thirty-one years, is dead. The end came at the Charles Gate Hospital here shortly before midnight.

Struck down last Wednesday just as he was making a rapid convalescence from his second operation within a few months, the seventy-four-year-old Senator was unconscious during most of the days intervening before his death.

For a brief period on Friday he rallied with remarkable vitality and regained consciousness for a few brief periods, during which he spoke to his physician and the relatives at his bedside. He again relapsed into a coma, however, and his strength gradually ebbed away.

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. John D. Lodge; his granddaughter, Miss Helen Lodge; two grandsons, John S. Lodge and John D. Lodge, were at his bedside.

Sexagenarian Tries to Shoot Himself, Fearing Advancing Years

Bullet is Extracted, and Man Expected to Live

While choirs rendered anthems of praise for the bounty of Thanksgiving, Christopher Brooks, sexagenarian resident of this city, walked quietly into an empty Cook Street house, "so that he would not be a trouble to anyone," and sent a bullet crashing into his head early yesterday evening.

Mr. Brooks, who resided with friends at 1147 Caledonia Avenue, walked four blocks away from the residence to a vacant house near Queen's Avenue. There, alone and despondent, he attempted to bring about his end with a sawn-off .32-calibre repeating rifle.

He is expected to recover.

STAGGERED HOME
Mr. Brooks lay unconscious and alone for a considerable time, the flow of blood from the wound in the right ear stopping of its own accord.

He was taken to the hospital at dark and staggered to his home.

The police were notified by a man staying in the house at the time, and Chief Fry, with Detective Stark, responded to the call.

BURDEN TO FRIENDS
Mr. Brooks talked calmly to police officers, describing his movements, and his motive. He was getting old, he said, and felt that he had grown to be too great a burden on his friends. Ill-health and financial straits, he said, were at the bottom of his desire to depart from this world by his own act.

While being rushed to the Jubilee Hospital the man gave these details, and for the first time he had received attention he reiterated the pathetic story.

In the empty house on Cook Street a pool of blood was found near the weapon, a .32-calibre repeating rifle, sawn off short to pistol size. In the chamber was one empty cartridge, while three live shells were still in the magazine.

BULLET REMOVED
An operation for the removal of the bullet was successfully undertaken at the Jubilee Hospital this morning by Dr. A. Bechtel. It appears the charge entered the head through the right ear, passing below the brain without piercing it.

Every hope is held out for his recovery. Meanwhile Mr. Brooks rests at the hospital under police surveillance, it being one of the anomalies of the law that attempted suicide is punishable.

As far as can be ascertained Mr. Brooks came to this city ten years ago from the prairie. He was befriended by the family with whom he (Concluded on page 2)

F. C. WADE'S DEATH IN OLD COUNTRY BRINGS TRIBUTE FROM PREMIER TO HIS WORK

Representative Who Succumbed in London Yesterday Morning Did Much to Advance Interests of British Columbia in United Kingdom; Born Sixty-four Years Ago, Mr. Wade Had Lived in Ontario, Yukon and This Province.

London, Nov. 10.—F. C. Wade, K.C., Agent-General of British Columbia in London, died yesterday morning of muscular rheumatism. Last week he suffered a severe heart attack and although considerable improvement was reported in his condition Saturday night, he suddenly collapsed after midnight and succumbed to another seizure a few hours later.

SERVED B.C. IN LONDON SIX YEARS; LATE F. C. WADE

News of Mr. Wade's death came as a shock to the British Columbia Government. Premier Oliver, on learning by cable from London that the Agent-General had succumbed, paid a high tribute to Mr. Wade's work.

"He was beyond all question the best Agent-General who has ever represented this Province in Britain," the Premier asserted. "News of his death comes as a shock to me and to my colleagues and we believe that by it this Province has suffered a serious loss."

AN ENERGETIC OFFICIAL
In his position as Agent-General Mr. Wade showed remarkable ability," the Premier said. "He was interested in everything that pertained to the good of this Province. He worked to induce the investment of capital here and to bring new settlers to this country. He did all in his power to foster preferential trade, of which he was a vigorous advocate. Nothing which could possibly advance this Province's welfare escaped him."

Immediately on hearing of Mr. Wade's death, the Premier cabinet his condolences to the late Agent-General's family and asked what disposition of the remains they desired.

Frederick Coate Wade, K.C., had been Agent-General of British Columbia in London since August, 1918.

Born February 26, 1860, in Bowmanville, Ontario, he was the son of the late William Wade, for many years manager of the Canadian branch of the Bank of Montreal. He was educated in Ottawa and Owen Sound, Ontario, and at Toronto University, where he took his B.A. degree in 1883. He was an editorial writer on The Toronto Daily Globe in 1882 and 1883. During part of the same time he edited The "Varsity," of Toronto University, and continued the same until his removal to the Yukon in 1897. In the latter year he commenced the practice of the legal profession in Winnipeg and continued the same until his removal to the Yukon in 1897.

ACTED AS INQUIRY
He represented the Department of Justice of the United States in the inquiry in 1897 into the claim of compensation made by Jean S. Bull after the Custer Massacre.

U.S. BUGLE CALL ON ARMISTICE DAY

New York, Nov. 10.—When S. Walter Krebs, who was too young to enlist during the war, conceived the idea of a commemorative bugle call four years ago. Most of last year he devoted to an effort to convince every Governor in the country that his air should be played on Armistice Day and as a result many states have placed "The Roll Call" on their memorial programmes. It will lead the ceremonies as a signal to announce the minute of silence to be observed by all at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. The call also will be sounded on battlefields.

Accustomed as the people of Victoria are to great gatherings at Parliament Square and Beacon Hill park to mark the Great War, there was no falling off in the attendance, nor in the interest shown yesterday afternoon at the gathering. Following a street procession which drew hundreds to Yates, Douglas, Fort, Blanshard and other streets on the line of march from the public library, the crowd surged to the expanse in front of Christ Church Cathedral, where they were received by the clergy and the standard bearers of the I.O.E.F. chapters in the city, assembled at the West Door.

With overcast skies, rain fortunately kept off, and at one time the sun for a brief moment broke through the clouds, and illuminated the scene of order and animation. Seven bands supplied the music: the 16th Canadian Scottish brass and pipe bands, the Sea Cadets' band, the First Brigade band, the Salvation Army, the Fifth Regiment, and the Victoria Juvenile Pipe Band.

The parade, which was marshaled by Sgt.-Major F. Hatcher, was headed by "The Old Guard," V.C. M.P.P. and included units of the naval and military forces stationed here, the Victoria school cadets, the Victoria boy scouts and girl guides, and a very large contingent of war veterans.

The memorial service included two hymns, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," and "Onward Christian Soldiers" (Concluded on page 2)

NEW WORLD RECORD FOR HYDRO GLIDER

Paris, Nov. 10.—A hydro-glider—a flat boat equipped with a 450-horsepower motor and aerial propeller—guided by M. Fischer, yesterday broke the world record for this class of craft, attaining a speed of a little more than 130 kilometres (nearly eighty-seven miles) an hour.

BALLOT BOXES ARE KEPT UNDER GUARD

Armed Men See to it There is no U.S. Senate Upset in Ramsay County, Illinois

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 10.—Three armed guards employed by Thomas D. Schell, who defeated Senator Magnus Johnson for the United States Senate in Tuesday's election, are guarding this county's ballot boxes, which are stacked up in the corridors of the City Hall here, it was learned to-day.

We did not want to take any chances with the ballot boxes in Ramsay County or any other county in the state," said A. A. Drahn, manager of the Schell campaign. "If a contest should develop, careless handling of the ballot boxes would be an important part of the testimony."

find work to do, but for some time

troubles. In fits of despondency he talked with his friends about his inability to get work and, declared
again and again that he did not wish

vancing years.

How long the unfortunate victim of the shooting lay unconscious on the floor of the untenanted house is uncertain.

The weapon itself was purchased from a second-hand dealer some time ago. It was taken to a lock-smith's, where orders were left to have the barrel sawn off short. This was done, and Mr. Brooks retrieved his rifle, thus became a pistol. A fraction of an inch in the angle of holding the weapon and the result would have been fatal.

F. C. WADE'S DEATH IN OLD COUNTRY BRINGS TRIBUTE FROM PREMIER

He was elected first president of the Young Liberal Association of Winnipeg in 1886, and was re-elected in 1887. He was appointed a member of the Council of the University of Manitoba and of the Winnipeg Public School Board. He came prominently into notice as the author of two ably prepared pamphlets on the Manitoba School question, dealing with it from the point of view of the people of the province at large,
namely, "National Schools for Manitoba," 1892 and "The Manitoba School Question," 1895.

Mr. Wade was appointed a commissioner by Lord Aberdeen, Governor-General of Canada, February 2, 1897 to inquire into the management of the Manitoba Penitentiary, and subsequently presented an elaborate report.

WENT TO YUKON

On August 26, 1897, upon the opening up of the Yukon, Mr. Wade was appointed to organize the courts in the new territory and placed in charge of the administration of the criminal law as crown prosecutor.

On July 7, 1898, he was appointed legal adviser for the Government of the Territory and a member of the Territorial Council. Besides acting as crown prosecutor during his residence in the Yukon, Mr. Wade carried on his private law practice.

SETTLED IN VANCOUVER

Mr. Wade removed from the Yukon
July 14, 1891, and after some time spent abroad, settled in Vancouver.
He was appointed King's Counsel
by the Dominion Government during Lord Minto's term as Governor General, April 28, 1902. He was elected a non-resident fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute May 28, 1902 and a member of the National Liberal Club, London, the same year.

In the beginning of 1903 Mr. Wade was appointed one of the British counsel before the Alaska Boundary Tribunal and was engaged in London in the preparation of the Canadian case and before the Tribunal
from March till November of that year, the session of the Tribunal for the hearing of argument lasting from September 3 till October 29, 1903. The British agent, Hon. Clifford Sifton,

afterwards, October 22, 1903, in a letter to the Marquis of Lansdowne
said: "I have also to express my appreciation of the efficient manner in which F. C. Wade, K.C., L. P. Duff, K.C., and A. Geoffrion, K.C., or the Canadian Bar, and S. A. T. Rowlett,
K.C., and J. E. Simon of the English Bar, discharged the important duties confided to them. Upon Mr. Wade and Mr. Rowlett fell the heaviest portion of the labor attending the preparation of the British case and counter-case, rendered more difficult by the shortness of time allowed by the treaty. I cannot speak too highly of the ability and judgment which was exhibited by both these gentlemen."

Lord Lansdowne, by command of the King, replied October 30, 1903,
signifying the King's approval.

In Vancouver Mr. Wade became the senior partner in the law firm
of Wade, Wheeler and McQuarrie.

WROTE FOR MAGAZINES

Besides the books on the school
question in Manitoba, he wrote a number of pamphlets and magazine
articles, including: "The Klondike—
A Four Years' Retrospect" (Proced-
ings of the Royal Colonial Institute 1901-2); "The Alaska-Yukon
Boundary Dispute: Its Practical Side" (Empire Review, January 1904); "Some Comments on the Alaskan Award" (Canadian Magazine, February, 1904); "Canada at the Grave of General Wolfe" (Canadian Club, Winnipeg, July 19, 1906);
"The Early Navigators of the Pacific" (Proceedings of the Art,
Historical and Scientific Association,
February 18, 1907); "The Canadian Flag" a successful protest in pamphlet form against the attempt to discontinue the use of the Canadian emblem on the flag of the British Columbia Schools, and in 1909
a short "History of Liberalism in Canada," and several other papers on public and historical matters.

HEADED NEWSPAPER COMPANY

For the year 1913 he was a member of the Senate of the University of British Columbia.

PRESENT AT CORONATION

Mr. Wade was present at the coronation of King George and Queen
Mary in Westminster Abbey in June, 1911. He was also present at the installation of the Prince of Wales at Carnarvon Castle.

CANADIAN CLUB HEAD

Mr. Wade was elected the first president of the Canadian Club of Vancouver, August 22, 1906, and presided at the meeting of September 25, 1906, when the club was inaugurated
by Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada. He was for some time a vice-president of the Children's Aid Society, and till his removal from Vancouver to London was president of the Art, Historical and Scientific Association, chairman of the Juvenile Protection Association, chairman of the Baden-Powell Boy Scouts, and a director of the Vancouver Branch of the Navy League.

He was a member of the Church of England. In politics he was a supporter of the Liberal Party.
He married in September, 1886,
Edith Mabel, the youngest daughter
of David Breckenridge Read, Q.C., Toronto, and Miss Marjory Wade and John Breckenridge Wade are the children of the union.

AN ACTIVE REPRESENTATIVE

Since his appointment as Agent-
General of British Columbia in London in August, 1919, Mr. Wade had made his home in the British capital.
He came to be known as a man of great energy in his position as representative of the Province, and the people from time to time read of his activities. He lost no opportunity of impressing upon the people of the Old Country the advantages to be gained in buying British Columbia products.

As Agent-General he succeeded the late Sir Richard McBride, former Premier of British Columbia.

On several occasions he returned from London to this Province for brief visits.

EXHIBITION WORK

As chairman of the committee in charge of the Canadian section of the Empire Pageant to Empire Exhibition at Wembley during the past summer Mr. Wade was very active.
He also took a keen interest in Canada's exhibit at the big fair.

tion of Labor, and members of the

CITY CLERGY GREET PASTOR

Rev. Henry Knox is Warmly
Welcomed by Congregation
And Visitors

A warm welcome was given by the congregation of Emmanuel Baptist Church to the new pastor, Rev. Henry Knox. Before the public meeting
there was a banquet in the schoolroom, presided over by the senior deacon and one of the pioneer members, John Clements. Speakers of addresses of welcome were Rev. Robert Lennie, nonagenarian Baptist minister of British Columbia, Rev. F.
T. Tapscott, pastor of Spanish Baptist Church, and Rev. W. H. Redman, pastor of Douglas Street Baptist Church.

A presentation of a growing fern in an ornamental basket was then made to Mrs. Knox by Miss Shield's Sunday school class, together with a bouquet through Little Miss Parker.
Mrs. Andrews, on behalf of the ladies of the congregation, also welcomed
Mrs. Knox, who in replying pointed out that while the call was not to the pastor's wife she hoped to share
fully in their labors, anxieties and triumphs in the coming days.

At the public meeting Alderman Marchant occupied the chair, and the greetings of sister churches were conveyed by Rev. Dr. McCoy, Rev. T.
W. Gladstone, Rev. A. K. McMillan,
president of the Victoria Ministerial Association, Rev. Dr. W. Leslie Clay,
Rev. W. P. Freeman, of the First chairman of the Provincial mission board, who had come from Vancouver for the purpose.

The chairman observed that in a varied field of labor their new pastor
might have as great a future for the church and the city as had their beloved late pastor. He pointed out that a tablet to the memory of the late Rev. William Stevenson had recently been erected in the church.

Mr. Knox, in his response, alluded to his five years' ministry at Prince Albert, to his pastorate at Broadview,
Manitoba, and three and half years
in the trenches in France, before he joined the ministry. He bespoke on behalf of his wife and himself the support and assistance of the congregation.

MIGHT VERSUS RIGHT

Mr. White emphasized the difference between the British and the German ideal before the war, might being taught in Germany as the dominant ideal to which even religion must play a secondary part, while the British ideal of righteousness was one which deserved the backing of all right-thinking people. Germany having set herself to conquer the world, seized an opportunity in 1914
when there was trouble in Ireland and India, and uncertainty about the turn of events in South Africa, hoping to face a disunited Empire. Of seas to fight from Canada 60,000 had fallen. Had that sacrifice been fully appreciated? he asked.

He was very much struck with the inscription on the Vancouver cenotaph,
"Is it nothing to you, all ye that carry a lesson to them, an appreciation and acknowledgment of the great sacrifice, and of recognition of the responsibility of the public to those who remained.

The service was a remarkable success, and reflects great credit on the Armistice Day committee. To gather a large crowd on a chilly November
day in the open was a tribute to the organizing capacity of the committee.
It had been expected to proceed to Christ Church Memorial Hall, but as only a fraction of those who attended
could have entered the building, it proved that an open-air meeting was imperative.

Mrs. Brown occupied the chair and the report submitted by the secretary showed the council to be in a flourishing condition, financially, inasmuch as the completion of six months' work had a balance of $700 in the bank, besides the purchase of a Ford car.

He resided in the Metchison district previous to coming to Cowichan Station, where he had lived for about fifty years. He is survived by his widow, living at the family home, Cowichan.

ONTARIO TRIES OUT REFORESTATION PLAN

Thirty Thousand Pounds of Red and White Pine Seed Will be Used

Information on what action the Ontario Government is taking on reforestation has been received by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce which will present a resolution to the British Columbia Board of Trade calling upon the Provincial Government to adopt a reforestation policy in British Columbia. A new scheme for the culture and reforestation in Ontario is to be undertaken by the Department of Lands and Forests during the coming months. The plan is to plant burnt-over and cut timber lands with pine seed but as this is more or less in the nature of an experiment only three or four hundred acres of land will be planted. Approximately 30,000 pounds of red and white pine seed will be used for the production of seedlings for reforestation purposes.

AMATEUR RADIO FAN BEATS WORLD RECORD

California Boy Worked N.Z. Amateur Carrying on Two-Way Conversation

The world's record for long range two-way amateur communication has again been broken, this time by a Pacific Coast amateur, Wallace Magner, 6BCP, of 464 Sixth Street, San Pedro, California. Magner worked Frank D. Bell of Waimo, New Zealand, over a distance of more than 6,900 miles, thereby smashing the record previously held by Carlos Braggio of Bernal, Argentina, of 6,400 miles.

Magner worked the New Zealand amateur from 12:40 to 1:20 a.m. Sunday, September 21. Kenneth E. Brown, 6CQW, of Long Beach, Calif., had to stand by during this conversation but at its conclusion cut in and worked Bell for thirty minutes more, thereby claiming second place in this remarkable achievement.

The working of Bell in two-way communication comes as the culmination of Australian Transpacific tests launched several years ago by Radio Journal and continued jointly under the auspices of Radio Journal, the American Radio Relay League and the Radio Association of Southern California. In his series of tests something like 400 American amateurs got across to New Zealand and Australia but, up to the time of this achievement, Bell, Magner and Reidman, no Australian or New Zealander had been able to establish two-way contact.

As a result of these tests Magner won the Australian boomerang offered as a prize to the first North American amateur to establish two-way communication with the Antipodes, while K. L. Reidman gets a pair of green suspenders as a consolation prize by the A.R.R.L.

Magner used 20 watts, 600-volt plate supply from a motor generator. He employs a master oscillator, one five-watt tube being employed as oscillator and four five-watts as power amplifiers. His antenna is of the inverted L, type 40 feet from the ground and 40 feet long, with an extensive counterpoise system. He radiates four amperes.

The remarkable part of it is that his receiver, used reading the New Zealander's code, is only a two-tube, 1920 and dry cells at that. It is a modified Roberts. Bell worked on 30 meters and 6BCP on 157 meters. Bell's call is NZAAA.

and Henry Cabot Lodge II, and his physician, Dr. John C. Cunningham. He died at 10:15 a.m. when he was 84.

MANY TRIBUTES

Word of his death brought tributes from many places. Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, who shared with him the representation of Massachusetts in the Upper House, said: "Massachusetts has lost a statesman and a scholar who added more to her prestige than any other man in half a century."

The funeral service will be held at the home of Dr. William Sturges Bigelow, a lifelong friend of the Senator and fellow member of the Class of 1871 at Harvard. Burial will be in the Lodge family lot in the Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

Henry Cabot Lodge, who was born May 12, 1850, had served continuously in the United States Senate since 1892, as Republican leader since the August, 1915, and was one of the most prominent members of his party for a generation.

Statesman, publicist, author, lawyer and historian, Mr. Lodge's manifold activities made a wide impression on contemporaneous events. His prominence, perhaps, came to him as leader of the Senate Opposition to the League of Nations and the Treaty of Versailles during 1919.

He was chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Republican floor leader. He led the contest with former President Wilson in the fight against ratification. He was the author of the "Lodge reservations" and was credited with a large part in molding the policy of the Harding administration against American entrance into the League.

ALWAYS A WORKER

He was born in leisure, but always worked. A principle laid down by him in early life was "The first thing for a man of leisure to do, if he really wishes to count in his day and generation, is to avoid being an amateur. Although his parents had an intention of practicing law, he worked hard and won a degree in that branch at Harvard, and then worked on a thesis on Anglo-Saxon law, which won him his Ph.D.

In the three years that followed he was lecturer at Harvard on American history, and at the age of thirty was recognized as an authoritative historian. Among the scores of books he wrote were biographies of Washington, Hamilton and Webster.

His public career began with election to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1879.

MEMBER OF HOUSE

He was unsuccessful in his first attempt to go to Washington as a national legislator. In 1882 he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congressman and the contest was so close that 120 ballots were required to decide the nomination of his opponent by the Congressional convention. In 1884, however, he was nominated and elected to the national

House of Representatives, where he served six years before his election to the Senate.

His oratory was distinguished by his practice of sketching in an historical background and his facility in quoting apt historical incidents. In an interview in 1922 summing up his career he said: "I have nothing to say about my opponents, for I have never made personal or abusive attacks on anyone opposed to me."

HONORED BY PARTY

Mr. Lodge from the outset of his public career was an enthusiastic Republican and an intense partisan. He was honored often by his party. An ambition to be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, on which he served for many years, was realized when the Republicans regained control of the Senate in 1919. He then also was chosen majority leader, having served the Republican minority previously as floor leader.

Twice Senator Lodge was temporary and permanent chairman of Republican National Conventions, at Philadelphia in 1906 and at Chicago in 1920. Former President Roosevelt, a lifelong friend, urged Mr. Lodge's nomination for the Republican presidential candidacy in 1916, when Mr. Roosevelt declined the Progressive Party's nomination. As chairman of the 1920 Republican convention, Senator Lodge was prominent in conferences which led to President Harding's nomination.

In addition to conflicts with partisan opponents, Senator Lodge had several inter-party contests.

WAS CRITICIZED

He was severely criticized by independently inclined members of his own party in 1884, when, on his return from the Republican National Convention at which he had been elected, he was charged with having built up a powerful machine to control party affairs in Massachusetts. He secured the nomination, however, and was re-elected by a margin of six votes in the Massachusetts Legislature. He was re-elected in 1916 for a term expiring in 1923.

Seeking re-election in 1922, he was faced with determined opposition within and without his party. The vote ran close throughout the state, and although Senator Lodge's re-election was assured by the returns it was not until after a recount of the ballots, demanded by both parties, that his plurality over William A. Gaston, a Boston lawyer, was fixed at 7,236.

A BITTER CONTEST

Mr. Lodge's seat in the Senate was not seriously threatened until the campaign of 1916, when rival candidates presented themselves for the Republican nomination and waged a bitter contest against him. In that campaign he was charged with having built up a powerful machine to control party affairs in Massachusetts. He secured the nomination, however, and was re-elected by a margin of six votes in the Massachusetts Legislature. He was re-elected in 1916 for a term expiring in 1923.

Seeking re-election in 1922, he was faced with determined opposition within and without his party. The vote ran close throughout the state, and although Senator Lodge's re-election was assured by the returns it was not until after a recount of the ballots, demanded by both parties, that his plurality over William A. Gaston, a Boston lawyer, was fixed at 7,236.

FRIEND OF ROOSEVELT

Soon after leaving college Mr. Lodge formed a close friendship with Theodore Roosevelt. This was fostered by their joint interest in history and politics, and during Mr. Roosevelt's administration as President Senator Lodge was invariably a factor in conferences at the White House.

During the Harding administration he also was a prominent figure in party councils and political circles. The establishment of international copyright, the regulation of immigration, the reform of the consular service, and numerous other items of notable legislation were largely credited to him. As a member of the Foreign Relations Committee it fell to him to take charge in the Senate of the second Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and of the treaty establishing the Alaska tribunal—a tribunal of which he became a member. For years he was a member of the Senate Finance and Naval committees, active in

MR. F. C. WADE, K.C.

CANADA has lost an outstanding citizen in the death of F. C. Wade, K.C., Agent-General for British Columbia in Great Britain, which occurred in London early yesterday morning. For many years prior to his appointment as the representative of this Province in the metropolis of the Empire he had been prominent in the affairs of western Canada, where his ability as a lawyer and publicist, his enthusiastic interest in all worthy public movements, made him a national figure of considerable eminence.

Mr. Wade's selection as Agent-General for British Columbia was a peculiarly happy one, as the record of his service in that capacity has conspicuously shown. From the hour of his arrival at the scene of his labors until his fatal illness he became an indefatigable and effective champion of British Columbia's interests in London, a tireless advertiser of this Province's resources and opportunities for British settlement and investment. His journalistic talent enabled him to become a frequent contributor to the British press, his ability as a convincing and interesting speaker won the ear of British audiences, and of all provincial representatives in London he was the most widely known.

In the long negotiations which led up to the final organization of the pageant scenes in the Stadium at the British Empire Exhibition the late Mr. Wade took a very prominent part, and his knowledge of Canadian history and life on this half of the American continent admirably fitted him for the post of chairman of the Canadian section. In the staging of this moving and living picture of Canada as she once was and now is he spared no time and effort in order that this country might hold her proud place to which modern progress has entitled her.

Mr. Wade's able direction, together with loyal co-operation on the part of the staff of British Columbia House in London was responsible for the very effective display which this Province was able to make in the Canadian Pavilion at Wembley. To the official experts in the Government service and to the numerous industrial exhibitors from this Province the late Agent-General rendered unstinted aid and gave of his wealth of experience on all occasions. From the day the great fair opened Mr. Wade lost no opportunity of directing public attention to that section on this country's entry which dealt effectively and exclusively with British Columbia and British Columbia's progress and opportunities.

Mr. Wade's death creates a gap in the public service of this Province which it will be difficult to fill in such a way as to maintain the high standard of accomplishment established by him, and there will be widespread regret throughout western Canada over his loss.

OUR WATER POWER

THERE HAS JUST BEEN published by the Water Branch of the provincial Department of Lands a fine brochure on the water powers of British Columbia. It is pleasing to the eye because of its typographical excellence; it must be of immense value to the expert because it contains just the information which he requires; it will appeal to the industrialist because it is a plain picture of what has been done and what latent power awaits the harnessing process.

The Minister of Lands and his assistants are entitled to the warmest congratulations upon this valuable addition to contemporary publications which deal with British Columbia's wealth in resource and opportunity. As the foreword very properly emphasizes, "among the great agencies that contribute to the development of the modern state, cheap power stands in front rank." From the brochure itself goes forth, in interesting and concise form, the complete and simple story of that abundance of this natural wealth which this part of the Dominion possesses.

LONG WAY FROM DEAD

MR. FRANK BROWNE, the Labor member for the constituency of Burnaby, told the Legislature the other afternoon that the Liberal Party would never again form a Government in Great Britain or hold complete power at Ottawa.

The report of Mr. Browne's maiden effort in the local House did not include a reason for his judgment so decisively rendered. In the absence of anything in the nature of a qualification, however, let us remind him that there is more than one reason why a party which polled the lowest number of votes in the Old Country, and the party which stands for the only policy by which Canada can hope to realize upon her natural and unexploited wealth, are bound to remain a dominating force in the political life of both countries.

British Liberalism has undergone an eclipse for the time being. Its reduction to impotency was the sacrificial act of a people which has not changed its principles upon the fundamental issues which divide the two old parties since Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman took office in 1906. Less than twelve months ago that decision was reaffirmed in definite terms. Internecine strife alone is the ailment under which British Liberalism has wilted almost to the vanishing point. But its day is far from done.

As for Canadian Liberalism, nobody with any vision at all requires to think about its future. Its principle is in tune with the mood of the time, in this young country which demands more population to help in the payment of its bills. Under its policies the basic resources, from the development of which comes all wealth, will be brought nearer to the individual upon whom the responsibility for their exploitation devolves—the average man.

DR. TOLMIE AWAY OFF

DR. TOLMIE MUST BE suffering from poverty of subject when he attempts to draw an analogy between the recent election results in Great Britain and what he considers will take place in Canada when the present Government decides to go to the country.

The very Government which is now in office in Britain is the same Government which was beaten less than twelve months ago because it went to the country on the very policy which Dr. Tolmie and the Conservative Party of Canada are advocating so energetically to-day.

The Conservative Party in Britain won its victory last week because it made it quite clear that the subject of tariff reform was dead and buried. As soon as it begins to kick the corpse the 1923 election order will be applied.

PARIS WANTS SHOCK-ABSORBERS

THE CITY OF PARIS HAS just opened a contest for the best automobile shock-absorbers and will award prizes having a total value of 50,000 francs to the winners.

The regulations of this contest, which will close on March 31, 1925, are:

1. All models of shock-absorbers may enter the contest no matter on what part of the vehicle they are situated; no distinction will be made between apparatus designed for adaptation to the springs, the body or even the tires.
2. Vehicles weighing less than 2,000 kilograms (4410 lbs.) when fully loaded will be excluded from this contest.
3. All intending competitors should be ready to present a vehicle equipped with their shock-absorbers for road tests, the dates of which will be fixed after October 1.

The reason which determined the city of Paris to organize this contest is that the wear and tear caused by motor vehicles to the streets, most of which are paved in wood, is very considerable. Damage is also being caused to certain buildings in those sections of the French capital where traffic is particularly heavy by the constant jarring of vehicles not equipped with proper springs.

We are being told that the experimental Government of Britain is at an end and that there is little chance of its coming back. The people gave Mr. Ramsay MacDonald office in 1923 and an additional 750,000 votes in 1924. In 1900 the Labor vote was 62,698; in 1924 it went to more than 5,000,000. This is hardly a dead movement.

DR. FRANK CRANE

ON

"The Wreckers"

THERE is a class of people who make a living out of wrecking, or beach combing.

They lie in wait for ships that have been wrecked and gather up the fragments that have been strewn on the shore.

They are reminders of a certain kind of people that are met everywhere. Their business is to tear down, to destroy, to remove the waste. We even have them in the animal life and a large part of the insects and of the furry and winged wild things get their living by destroying other things or by handling the waste products.

An animal does not lie dead very long before the insects and carrion crows are at work removing the flesh from his bones and he is never left until his bones are white.

A certain part of the human race are wreckers.

The butchers take animal life in order to supply food for man.

The wood choppers fell trees and remove the growth from the land in order to make room for human habitation.

Undertakers remove human beings from the scene of their activity and scavengers remove the waste.

There are wreckers of ideas as well as of things. Some men seem to be gifted with the spirit of perpetual denial. They oppose, tear down, and destroy other men's beliefs. Perhaps it is necessary to do this in order to remove the growth of superstition and possibly some good goes along with the bad. It is difficult to tear down evil without, at the same time, destroying that which is good.

Wreckers have their place in the human economy. There is no bread without the destruction of grain, and most of our clothes are raked from the backs of animals.

As we look at the whole drama of human life we are minded of the Irish story of Orich who sits under the earth and continually weaves, weaving life upward and death downward.

For man must pass and it is as necessary that he should die as that he should be born.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

Nothing is so popular as kindness.

There is but one way of conversing safely with all men, that is, not by concealing what we know, but by saying or doing nothing that deserves to be concealed.

Fundamentally, there is no such thing as private action. All actions are public—in themselves or in their consequences.

Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man, but for one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred that will stand adversity.

Outward actions can never give a just estimate of us, since there are many perfections of a man which are not capable of appearing in actions.

Affection endeavors to correct natural defects, and has always the laudable aim of pleasing, though it always misses.

A resemblance of humor and opinion, a fancy for the same business or diversion, is a ground of affection.

The ambitious person must rise early, and sit up late, and pursue his designs with constant, infatigable attendance.

If anger is not restrained, it is frequently more harmful to us than the injury that provokes it.

Poverty is of much, but avarice of everything.

With books, as with companions, it is of more consequence to know which to avoid than to know which to choose.

WHO'S WHO IN HISTORY TO-DAY

MAHOMET

The founder of Mohammedanism, was born at Mecca, Arabia, on November 10, 570. Early in life he gained some knowledge of the religious teaching of the Jews and Christians, and at the age of forty beheld visions in which he was visited by the angel Gabriel. Thereafter, as he professed, there came to him revelations from God, and his belief that he was the apostle and prophet of God was established. His later years were filled with fighting, and at his death something like a definite Mohammedan empire had been built up.

MARTIN LUTHER

Illustrious German religious reformer, was born on November 10, 1483. At the age of twenty-two he became a monk and later was ordained a priest. His protest against the sale of indulgences first aroused violent antagonism against him, which was increased by pamphlets for whose publication he was excommunicated. He burned the bull of excommunication and renounced his allegiance to the Pope. Subsequently he laid aside the robe and married Katharina von Bora, a nun who had renounced her vows. His translation of the Bible established the literary language of Germany.

BENVENUTO CELLINI

Celebrated Italian sculptor and worker in gold and silver, was born on November 10, 1560. In his early life he took part in battles in Italy, and once was imprisoned in the Castle of St. Angelo. His later years were spent in the service of the Medici family in Florence. One of his best statues is the Perseus in that city. His autobiography is one of the most famous of Italian classics.

ROBERT DEVEREUX

(Second Earl of Essex) English nobleman, was a favorite of Queen Elizabeth, was born on November 10, 1567. He held various positions at court and in the army before his appointment as lord-lieutenant of Ireland. In this post he aroused the anger of the queen, who had previously shown him marked attention, by the failure of his operations against the Irish rebels. Later he was executed on the charge of treason.

MUSICAL AFFAIRS

To the Editor:—May I be permitted a few remarks about musical affairs in this city?

As the opening strains of Grieg's "Crisper Suite" ascended in majesty before the astonished ears of the audience assembled in the Empress ballroom a few evenings ago, one felt keen regret that the Continental Europe, are almost unknown in this part of the world.

Could not some concerted effort be made by public bodies interested in promoting Victoria as a winter resort to utilize Mr. Louis Turner's outstanding ability as an orchestral conductor to hold professional symphony concerts during the winter months?

This, without the knowledge of Mr. Turner, is written by KEEN LOVER OF GOOD MUSIC.

CHURCH UNION

To the Editor:—The beginning of "Church Union" is the end of all wisdom. Mr. Fraser in last night's Times glibly talked about "holding out the olive branch." "Jumping Liards" does he think the Presbyterians are all crazy? Jehu, the son of Nimshi, was once asked the question, "Is it peace?" and his answer was, "What have I to do with peace? We Presbyterians are doing the same thing. No, Mr. Fraser, the very last thing we would think of is 'peace.' If the Allies had held out the olive branch we would now all be eating saurkraut and doing the Goose Step to work. You Unionists started the whole rupture, now you have jolly well got to fight it out to the bitter end. We may unfortunately lose our church, but 'thank God,' we will not lose our souls by having peace at any price.

"LEST WE FORGET"

To the Editor:—May I remind those of your readers who still recognize their obligations to the homeland that it behooves us, in view of the increasing unemployment and cost of living (now seventy-two per cent over July, 1914), to do more than we are now doing to help British manufacturers. We must all do this some extent by plainly expressing our preference when ordering or buying; whether this is done generally I doubt. Some storekeepers find it convenient to deal with U.S.A. rather than with distant England; but it admits of no doubt that if customers will take the trouble to give utterance to their preferences, the manufacturers will supply what is wanted. If through false shame we say nothing, the whole blame rests on us. Between now and Christmas not a little may be done. I appeal to the various patriotic societies to keep the matter before their members. Britain is far away, out of sight, liable to be out of mind, too.

"THE BEST BUYER"

To the Editor:—We have gained the distinction of being the best buyer the United States has." So said the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen at Pantages Theatre last night, and this statement was the keynote of his whole speech.

Very well, Mr. Meighen, let us see what your own record is as compared with that of your successor in the Premiership.

In the fiscal year of 1920-1, Mr. Meighen's last complete year in office, Canada's imports from the United States amounted to $353,174,820.

In the fiscal year of 1923-4, after three years of Liberal Government, Canada's imports from the United States amounted to $501,238,447.

If it is good policy to reduce our annual obligations to the United States, as I think it is, then it must be admitted that Mr. Mackenzie King has been a far greater success than Mr. Meighen. Those obligations are still too high in proportion to the amount of business between the two countries. For the protection policy favored by Mr. Meighen and his party is the principal cause of the trouble.

REEVE LOCKLEY REPLIES

To the Editor:—In answer to a letter contained in your issue of Monday last from Councillor S. A. Pomeroy in which he refers to a meeting of the Support Club on Monday, Oct. 27, I would like to point out that it was not my meeting, but a meeting called by the whole council, with the exception, of course, of Councillor Pomeroy. Would it not be fair to ask why Councillor Pomeroy did not attend? He was invited, but refused the invitation. If what he asserts was true he had nothing to fear. There was an independent and impartial chairman, so there was no need for him to wait for the future to place his case before the voters. The fact remains that Councillor Pomeroy has been so inconsistent that he really does not know where he stands himself. If he is sincere when he says that he has always opposed the Memorandum Scheme why did he move on the 17th of last March that the annual estimates containing $5,000 for the very purpose of laying out the park should be passed for just previous to his motion the pros and cons of matters pertaining to the park had been discussed and at the end of the discussion he moved that the annual estimates containing the money set aside for the purpose of the park be passed. Then again on the 7th of July the Council received a letter from Councillor Pomeroy opposing the Memorandum Scheme and on the progress of the work at the park and asking further instruction. It was again moved by Councillor Pomeroy that the Engineer be directed to carry on with the work of grading. In face of these facts is it any wonder that people ask where does he stand on the park question? At one time he will oppose it and the next time he provides money for it. Then again he moves the work be carried on, and now he changes his course and is for another ducking. Being mindful of these facts I see no reason whatever why I should place myself in such a precarious position as setting sail in a boat accompanied by Councillor Pomeroy.

Why he should wait for some future meeting to place his version on questions pertaining to our municipal administration, what he had the opportunity to do so at this time, is a very peculiar stand for him to take. May I suggest that as a responsible member of the Council, his place was not only at that meeting but on the platform sharing the responsibility of his brother councillors no matter what views he had on any matter. He was invited there to state them, and if he had said nothing it would have looked better and perhaps caused a better impression than the position he took of paying through the doors.

Was in Council's Private Legislation, But Withdrawn 1923

Notice of motion will be given by Alderman Marchant to-morrow of his intention to introduce a resolution that a plebiscite be submitted to the voters at the annual election on the following question:

"Are you in favor of a system of monthly payments of taxes?"

As a sequel to this resolution the following is added:

"Resolved that a brief statement of the reasons for and against the proposal be published in the press when advertising the plebiscite, the one in favor of the motion to be prepared by the mover of the resolution, and the other by an alderman opposed thereto."

This is an endeavor to meet the situation adopted as a principle for incorporation in the city's private act, 1922, and withdrawn by petition in the bill of last year. The council at that time maintained that there was ample opportunity for pre-payment of taxes, upon which the city is paying six per cent interest up to the closing day (October 31). While this course of practice has brought in a large sum of money on an optional policy this year, Alderman Marchant's plan would be compulsory, just as is the payment of water rates. Thus no interest would be earned, the whole tax bill being spread over the year in twelve instalments.

MR. MEIGHEN'S SPEECH

To the Editor:—I was an interested listener at Mr. Meighen's meeting Friday evening in the Pantages Theatre and I must say I was much disappointed. I expected to hear from a man of Mr. Meighen's standing in politics something of a reasonable constructive policy, but he advanced nothing of a practical nature. True, he delighted the followers of his party by holding up twin the skill of a lawyer in court, who by word and argument strove to win his case) his opponents of the Government to ridicule and abuse. He represented them as being in the power of the Progressives, and complained that they can no longer buy their way out of the tariff. Apparently he thinks the farmer has no rights. He seems to ignore the fact that the farmers were compelled by them to make certain concessions by way of the tariff. Largely through the legislation of his party, who for years held the farmers' hands while the manufacturers went through their pockets. He charged the Government with responsibility for the present stagnation of trade, and the unemployment, and migration of water rates. He charged the similarity of conditions in other countries, for which (as also here) the war is the sole cause, as it has impoverished the people to such an extent they can no longer buy anything more than bare necessities. Consequently, we have lost some of our foreign trade. Of course Mr. Meighen evaded this fact, as it would have been in the nature of an excuse for the Government. The only remedy for present conditions in Mr. Meighen's estimation was to raise our tariff walls to the same height as the United States. Of course he remembered he was speaking to a city audience. I think if he had been on the prairies he would have sung a different tune. In my opinion, Mr. Editor, the crux of the whole trouble is lack of foreign markets, and I should like to ask Mr. Meighen if the factories of Canada were to be set running to-morrow, full blast, where would he sell his surplus goods? Find the markets and the wheels of progress would soon begin to turn.

NORTH TO HAVE LARGE CATTLE INDUSTRY SOON

Prince Rupert's Plans For Orient Shipments Fore- shadow Big Developments

That Prince Rupert will become an important shipping port and that the cattle industry will develop rapidly in the rich area tributary to it along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, is indicated by the present plans for shipping live cattle from the northern city to the Orient, in the opinion of the Lands Department here.

"General conditions attending farming in North Central British Columbia are ideal for the production of beef animals of high quality which can be very easily raised and brought to shipping condition very cheaply," Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, said today. He added his opinion that the cattle shipments planned in the North now would be "an immense factor in influencing the rapid settlement of that region."

While plans for the shipment of live cattle are progressing at Prince Rupert, the P. Burns Company has built an abattoir there to make possible the shipment of meat from the northern port.

"It is idle to speculate on the feasibility of shipping live cattle across the water for it is being constantly done by Canada to Great Britain and by other countries under far less favorable conditions than would attend shipments from Prince Rupert," Mr. Pattullo remarked. A recent shipment from British Columbia to Japan was highly successful in every way. The shorter route from the North, with constant mild temperatures, will render it a very desirable one."

WHITE MOOSE ARE FOUND IN LIARD SAYS INSPECTOR

White Bull is Still at Large, Liard Patrol of R.C.M.P. Learns

In spite of the fact that about one thousand moose are killed annually in the Liard district, they are found to be increasing, according to Inspector T. V. Sandys Wunsch, in command of the Liard patrol of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police which brought out several Indians accused of murdering a young man as a witch, and who are now confined in Oakalla, pending disposition of their case. It is estimated that 300 tanned skins were shipped out last year by the Hudson's Bay Company, and that 1,000 were killed last year. It is said the Indians are meat eaters, owing to the fact that which moose can be killed. In years gone by the prospectors took in meat with them, but now rely on the moose. So common are the animals that they are killed for dog food, and an attempt is now being made to supply smoked fish in their stead. In order to save the animals, as there is an abundance of white fish in the rivers and lakes.

Three white moose were killed at Thirty-mile bar on the Liard River in 1922, Mr. Sandys Wunsch says, and the Indians informed him that there was a large white bull near there now, whereupon he gave them strict instructions not to kill this animal or any others which they saw to be of a strange variety.

The herds of caribou are stated to be increasing. The deer are reported not to be numerous owing to the large numbers of wolves, and the Inspector recommends that some steps should be taken to keep down the wolves and coyotes by a select number of men using poison.

There are reported to be a large number of sheep and goats in the hills along the Dease and Liard Rivers. The sheep on the lower Liard are pure white and those on the upper Liard and Dease have a dark saddle.

The grizzlies are numerous, as well as black and brown bears, and an Indian was killed at McDame this Spring by one.

In connection with fur animals, Inspector Sandys Wunsch reports a slight decrease in foxes, lynx are increasing and also beaver. Marten, mink, beaver, lynx, muskrats and weasels are caught in large numbers, and to a less extent foxes, otter and wolverine.

The fish, chiefly white fish, salmon, pike and Dolly Varden trout are reported to be plentiful.

Do You Walk With a Smile or a Limp?

Wearer of Cantilever Shoes walk with an easy poise that bespeaks freedom from foot troubles. They step out with easy carriage, ankles straight and steady, feet arched with natural grace. They can walk for a long time without fatigue. And that swinging walk brings health and a greater capacity for happiness.

Well-fitted shoes contribute importantly to your strength and to your happiness. They must provide room for the toes, and freedom for the flexible arch of the foot. They must not check the free play of the muscles.

The Cantilever last follows the outline of the foot. The toes may stretch luxuriously. They point ahead as they should for comfort and correct posture. The set of the heel tends to distribute the weight so that the body is well poised. And the shoes are good-looking, graceful, trim, correct.

May be obtained in Black and Brown Kid Oxfords, similar to the illustration above; Black Kid Two-Straps, Black Satin One-Straps for evening wear, and Black Kid Boots.

ARMISTICE DAY 1918 — 1924

November 11

ON the occasion of this Anniversary, consecrated by the bravery and the blood of those who fought to set a World free, we pause to reverence them. Out of the smoke and sweat and agony of Conflict, torn countries arise, and greater industries. That lives were offered at the Shrine of Supreme Sacrifice is an Unforgettable Memory. Some great, holy spiritual contact will cause the dead to know we REMEMBER.

BETTY BALFOUR, HAPPINESS QUEEN, TO BE STARRED AT CAPITOL

Popular Actress Receives Many Letters Daily, From Friends Grave and Gay; Appears Here in "Squibs' Honeymoon"

Betty Balfour, Britain's Queen of Happiness in "Squibs' Honeymoon," is to play at the Capitol this week. Betty Balfour is now such a favorite with picture-goers in all parts of the world that she has an enormous post to deal with every day. The average number of letters from Great Britain alone is more than a hundred a day. Some of the letters she receives are most interesting and some amusing. Quite a large number of correspondents who write to her are women and girls asking her either to sell or give the clothes she wears in her films.

One letter Miss Balfour received a few days ago was from a lady in Rotterdam who wrote to tell her that she was coming over to England for a fortnight, and that she would spend it with her. On the other hand, sometimes the letters Miss Balfour receives are very pathetic. A long letter from a little working girl recently told Miss Balfour that the writer had a brother who had been paralyzed for many years, and because she and her mother were not strong enough to push him about he very seldom got out into the sunshine. Her letter was an appeal to Miss Balfour to write a cheery note to this poor boy who had heard so much about the happiness she radiated from the screen, from his sister. Britain's Queen of Happiness, Betty Balfour, in "Squibs' Honeymoon" will be shown again to-day at the Capitol.

"HIS HOUR" OFFERS GREAT LOVE TALE, NOW AT DOMINION

Elinor Glyn Story Introduces Two Favorite Screen Lovers Playing Hero and Heroine, in Romantic Picture

The rare combination of an Elinor Glyn story brought to the screen with her two favorite screen lovers playing the hero and heroine is the promise of "His Hour," Mrs. Glyn's latest Metro-Goldwyn production, which will show at the Dominion Theatre to-day for a run of five days. In the first place, John Gilbert, as a romantic Russian Prince, is said to come up to all expectations as to just what Elinor Glyn's ideal hero should be like, and Aileen Pringle, who demonstrated so definitely her ability and charm in "Three Weeks," is again the beautiful heroine.

"His Hour" tells the story of a fascinating English widow, brought up in a straight, laced manner, meeting informally Grizko, the fiery Russian Prince whom all women adore.

She is instantly attracted to him, but knowing him by reputation, she resolves she will not follow the trend of all other women and become his slave. Therefore, the wall of aloofness freezes about her and the Prince, who has fallen in love with her, cannot win her. She realizes him by her indifference, yet he goes to every means to win her.

Finally, as a last resort, he kidnaps her, and then follows a series of love scenes which are said even to surpass those in "Three Weeks." The climax, when the Prince and Tamara realize they love each other devotedly, is one of the most beautiful and realistic scenes ever brought to the screen.

King Vidor directed the production, and others in the cast beside the two leads are, Emily Fitzroy, Dale Fuller, Bertram Grassby, Capt. Wilfred Gough, David Mir and Marie Carillo. John Mesall was chief photographer.

"His Hour" is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, presented by Louis B. Mayer.

Comedy Showing At Columbia is Attractive Feature

Betty Balfour Appears in London Screen Film as "Mord Em'ly"

Betty Balfour in "Mord Em'ly," the English comedy now showing at Columbia Theatre has been held over on account of popular demand. Mord finds herself in the service of three prim old maids, who, to use her own expression, "give her the 'ump'." Mord has some hilarious and cyclonic adventures as a servant girl, but finds herself unequal to sticking it, and for this she "does a bunk," which lands her once more among her old friends on the Walworth road. Here she once more meets her bloke, Battling Every Barden, who has earned himself a reputation as a box fighter of no mean ability; and for a while Mord is happy, being as she is now "kerfused to the one what she loves."

But further adventures await Mord Em'ly, and after several reckless and carefree escapades she finds herself "happily married" to a fortune-hunter, who is the worst reformatory—but even here the sunshine of Mord Em'ly's personality is shed over the unfortunate inmates, and the pedagogical authorities are subject to the amusing and daring pranks of the Cockney girl. Meanwhile Mord becomes fed up with the blooming reformatory, and she culminates her escapades by making a daring escape from the reformatory right under the eyes of the law; and then she has a right merry time for a while keeping away from the watchful eyes of the various coppers. However, Mord always was an artful dodger, and everything turns out well on that score.

Mitzi Appears in "The Magic Ring" Here in December

Charming little Mitzi whom Henry W. Savage is presenting this season in the fantastic comedy-with-music, "The Magic Ring," has a big ambition. Some day she wants to teach school.

"Not exactly readin', ritin' and rithmetick," she confesses in speaking of her aspirations. "I want to teach the three R's—of education, for the musical stage," she says, "singing, dancing and acting. The crying need of producers at present is for actors and actresses who can do all three things. My great ambition is to found a school where young players can get the right training in these three arts. Suppose we will call it an 'academy'."

"My academy won't be exclusively for musical comedy artists," explains Mitzi, "but those who complete my course will be able to take a turn at singing and dancing, even if their goal is a dramatic stock company at Kankakee. Training in singing and dancing is necessary to an actor's education. Dancing makes one graceful while singing does marvels for the speaking voice. If a pupil came to me who wanted to play 'Lady Macbeth' I'd start her off with a thorough course of singing and dancing. The art of creation—putting life in a part—and the general mechanics of acting are only a part of real stage education."

Mitzi has recently been delivering some very interesting talks on the stage and the art of acting. She has been lecturing to Europe for the express purpose of delivering lectures to young stage aspirants of Budapest and other Continental cities on the art of acting. Mitzi will play "The Magic Ring" in this city at the Victoria Theatre on Monday, December 15, for one night only.

YOUR HEALTH

BE SURE THAT YOUR BED DOESN'T CRAMP YOUR SPINE

By Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

In America there are all kinds of societies and organizations. Every day we learn of a new one. Have you heard of the "National League for the Prevention of Spinal Curvature?"

The president of this organization, Dr. F. P. Millard, says beds to-day are made for five-foot people. This is all wrong, he contends, holding that it is not enough to have the bed as long as the sleeper, or merely a few inches longer.

In order to have proper relaxation in sleep there must be a clearance of twelve inches or more between the tips of the toes and the footboard of the bed. If this is not the case, the bed-clothing presses over the toes, the doctor says, and bends the spine back, cramping the feet and legs and crowding the spine.

This is a quotation from Dr. Millard: "A person lying in a cramped position where he cannot stretch absolutely straight cannot expect to have good circulation, not to mention a straight back. Animals stretch and yawn to improve their circulation. Why not let humans do it?"

A while ago I wrote an article on beds, recommending that you try all the beds in the house to find if they are comfortable. One of my readers wrote me a scolding letter, complaining that many persons are too poor to be particular about their beds. I guess he thought I was going far afield to seek a health topic in beds and mattresses.

As a matter of fact, there can be no more important subject to discuss than the way folks sleep. One-third of every life is spent in bed. It makes a lot of difference in the comfort and health what kind of a bed is used for this twenty or thirty years of your life.

Children must be looked after with the greatest care. Their tissues are soft and pliable, readily yielding to every force. If the bed is too short there can be no doubt about the evil effects of hours and hours spent in the wrong position.

Many a baby cries for no apparent reason. One of the causes is his discomfort, due to a short crib. Every mother must bear in mind the importance of this situation.

It is a good thing to examine the spine of a growing child every three or four months. If there appears to be curvatures, the family doctor should be consulted.

You know there are two kinds of curvature. One is the curvature to one side, so the body is tilted to one side or the other. Then there is a curvature from before backwards, causing the back to sway in too far. Take a look now and then so as to make sure the child is growing as straight as he should.

New York, Nov. 10.—Ethel Barrymore, lacking a suitable vehicle from this season's writing, has brought out "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," somewhat shaky and outgrown, model of 1893.

The appearance of America's premier actress in Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's famous play constitutes one of the events of the season. As Ethel Barrymore plays it, it rewards the audience with interest sustained at least as long as she is in sight.

And it teaches us how far the world has traveled in thirty-two years. We know that men's speech to-day is not like the stilted conversation in the opening scene, nor the almost laughably futile imprecations of Mr. Tanqueray at the close. We wonder if men ever did talk that way. The tragic motivation does not appear any longer necessarily tragic. The story concerns a man of position, wealth and loneliness who marries a woman whose experience with men has been varied and comprehensive, but has not included formal matrimony. She desired her new position ardently, but found lonely respectability boring.

Miss Barrymore creates a flashy and adventurous Mrs. Tanqueray, not attracting sympathy so much as furnishing entertainment.

Melodrama shouts and throbs and pleases in "Alloy," new play by Robert Ritz at the Princess. Scene: The kitchen of a steel worker's home. Cast: Bestial husband, "deserving" wife, noble boarder. The wife herself courageously and sincerely offers herself to the boarder whom she loves. He refuses and she, in her husband's own cruelty and unfaithfulness, makes the choice for them. Boarder knocks down husband and walks off with wife. The lead parts are played consistently well by Minna Gombel, Byron Beasley and Ivan Miller.

"The Rising Son" is a product of the pen of J. C. Nugent and Elliot Nugent, who, with Ruth Nugent, play the three leads. Sort of family affair, as it were. More was to be expected from the authors of Kemps. It drags in spots, but the comedy is clean, the wit, sparkling and raptorial at times.

The father who longs to write highbrow stuff, but is hampered by his limited vocabulary, sends his son to college to gain equipment for the same the father has missed. The boy would rather start New England hotels, and incidentally marry the girl of his choice. The girl's aristocratic aunt is forced by penury to open an inn, with the boy as manager.

Mary Shaw as Mrs. Malone, mother of the author, is the outstanding bit of the play. Her character playing is fine. J. C. Nugent as the father is good, and his drinking of some B. P. liquor is a marvelous piece of work. While "The Rising Son" will never rise to fame, it affords an evening of laughter and entertainment.

David Belasco's first production of the season is "Tiger Cats," in which Katharine Cornell seizes the pre-

and her happy, confident voice bank to pauses, to half-phrases. Once or twice she stopped short on the old brick sidewalks, looking straight at each other, and oblivious of dusk
and the home-going world.

"You mean you?"
"Yes, of course. My dear child,
I'm a physician! My eyes keep coming back to you, again and again."
"But I was just one of your audience! How could you possibly—"
"I don't know. But I did. I thought that you were unhappy.
But you seemed to me only a little girl, then!"

"An unhappy little girl," Chris-
said, in an undertone, walking on.
"An unhappy little girl," he echoed gravely. "I hope it's not true!"

"No, it's not true," answered
Mrs. Stuart Knight, matter-of-factly.
"But I like to think you would be a little sorry, Dr. Montague, if it were?" Chris added, with an oblique glance.

"Yes, it would make a real difference," he answered practically.
"Because you and I are going to be friends, I hope."

"I hope so!" Chris said, her foolish mood of the moment. "In her own honest voice. 'This is our house,'
she finished, stopping at the remodeled old brick homestead in the other side of the Buffalo Bridge
among the old trees and brick fences of Georgetown. 'Will you come in?'"

"He watched her flit up
the path in the dusk, and the fan-lighted door open and engulf her in light. She seemed a mere child to be the mistress of the place."
She flashed into the house in that state of conscious vitality and dramatic excitement that sometimes follows a concert or play. Everything was thrilling, and she—Christine—was the very core and heart
of it all.

The soft-lighted hallway, the vista of hospitable drawing-room
and dining-room, big black Ida ponderously going about with flowers,
Hazel coquettish in a "water-wave"
and a black gown and flitted about all this seemed good to her. Especially good was it to fling off her street
clothes, to drop upon the big divan
before the coal fire, and to let her head rest on a tiny pillow under her hand, and ring for Cordelia and the little rioting.

Cordelia brought her decorously
the little rioting. Christine's face twisted into a smile as she heard
the baby's protestant shouts, and Cordelia's pleasant English voice approaching.

"Miss Betty—do be a good girl,
you must not let me see you're naughty to you to roll, so—your feet—you're getting such a big pair."

The recalcitrant Betty-Lou here burst in, and Cordelia retired, to have her tea in peace. Christine saw how handsome, how distinguished-looking he was, how entirely the born gentleman. Thirty-
five, Christine surmised; thirty-six,
perhaps. At all events he was at least delightful as when the crude-
ness of youth is gone, and its freshness remains.

"I know they would," Christine assured him positively.
"And how do I find them?" the man asked.

"You dine at my house at half-past seven," she smiled.
"No, but may I really?" He had brightened, and Christine saw how
saw how handsome, how distinguished-looking he was, how entirely the born gentleman. Thirty-
five, Christine surmised; thirty-six,
perhaps. At all events he was at
least delightful as when the crude-
ness of youth is gone, and its fresh-
ness remains.

"I can't believe that," she said,
quietly, disapprovingly, unsmiling.
"Well, now let me see how I can convince you," said the man, simply.
You were in the aisle, about the sixth row, and you dropped your fur and leaped down to pick it up. There was a lady with you—your mother—"

"Why, I do think that is perfectly astonishing!" Christine exclaimed, her beautiful eyes round and an expression of childish pleasure and amazement upon her face. "That out of all that crowd you should see me!"

"I saw more than that," the man assured her. "It seemed to me that you did not listen to one word I said. I don't blame you—I don't blame you," he hastened to add,
laughing. "At your age you have better things to think about!"

His expression was only friendly,
indeed, almost brotherly, but Christine felt it was time to say, with a hint of dignity:
"Perhaps I was thinking about my baby!"

His kindly eyes twinkled behind
his glasses.
"You have a baby?"
"Indeed, I have—Betty-Lou. She's almost two!"

The man gave her a quick, scrutinizing look.
"Are you twenty?"
"Oh, older than that!" she said.
And she looked down at her programme, a little flustered, a little cool, and wondering if he would speak again.

He did speak, but it was about the music this time. Christine was presently glowing and eager again—she loved this sort of talk. About the composer, and the theme, and the permanent place of Humperdink
among the musicians.

"You love music?" Dr. Montague said, watching her.
"I love—" She left the sentence
unfinished.
"Life," he supplied smiling.

"Well, perhaps that's nearer. You don't know my name," said Christine, with her engaging simplicity.
"I am Mrs. Stuart Knight."
"No relation to Colonel Archer M.
Knight, I suppose, of Washington?"
"My husband's father," stated

elderly man and woman. Stuart's father was small, white-headed,
rosy-cheeked, a shrewd little anxious type. Mrs. Knight senior was tall and bland and religious, with diamonds on her soft, stout old throat. They had just entered the room themselves, and were standing, by the fire, when Christine came in.

"Sit down—sit down—the others
will all be late!" the girl said, sitting down herself upon the broad leather
hassock before the wood fire.

"Christie," her mother-in-law said
dreadfully, "Ida tells me Stuart won't be here!"

A little cloud came over Christine's
face, and she shrugged a bare shoulder.

"But how does that happen?"
Stuart's mother asked, anxiously, as if it had never happened before.

"I don't know," Chris said politely,
but with a little frown.
"Oh, don't nibble my ears!" begged
the bunny.

"Yes, I shall!" howled the Fox.
"Quick, my little Corn Mice, we must help Uncle Wiggily," said the bunny.

Quee! Quee! and out from under
the little corn tent ran seven baby
Corn Mice. On their whiskers were grains of corn they had gnawed, for they had been eating lunch.

"Oh, what cute little Corn Mice!"
cried Uncle Wiggily. "And what long tails they have!"

"Yes, and what good ears for nibbling you have!" suddenly cried a savage voice and around the corner of the corn tent came the Fox.

"Oh, don't nibble my ears!" begged
the bunny.

"Yes, I shall!" howled the Fox.
"Quick, my little Corn Mice, we
must help Uncle Wiggily," said the
bunny.

Quee! Quee! and out from under
the little corn tent ran seven baby
Corn Mice. On their whiskers were mother mouse. "Nip the Fox on his toes!"

"Before the bad chap could bite
the bunny the mother mouse and the seven little mice, eight of them altogether, began to nibble the toes of the Fox. Two mice nibbled each toe, and the Fox had to dance up and down. He had no time to bite the mice."

"Wowee! wowee!" howled the bad
chap. "Stop nibbling my toes!"
"We'll stop when you run away!"
squeaked the mother mouse.

"Then I'll run away!" barked the Fox, and away he ran, and Uncle Wiggily laughed. Then he thanked the mice for helping him, and after picking two ears of corn he hopped back to his bungalow. The mother mouse and the seven little mice
crawled back under the corn and went to sleep.

And if the church steeple doesn't lean down to the ground to try to the rag-doll's roller-skates, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's concert.

NEW SERIAL STORY Christine of the Hungry Heart

A THRILLING LOVE STORY
BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER IV ALAN MONTEAGUE

Christine walked past the little shops and along the pleasantly crowded thoroughfares. A little shop, with bells and lace and candlesticks and bags—A little shop, with cakes
and salads—
Because one couldn't be idle, and certainly one couldn't go on lunching
and going to concerts, and playing bridge—
The concert was drawing surprisingly. Ethel Moore had asked Christine to return the ticket she did not intend to use to the box office, and Christine leaned over quite a queue
of prospective buyers as she did so.
"Mrs. Carter Moore—" she said. "It was a name with which to conjure;
the resplendent light looked at her respectfully. Christine's beauty was an identification ticket anywhere, and she knew she was recognized as she went through the gate and down the dark aisle to her seat.

The orchestra was filtering out to the stage amidst Vienna cane chairs.
"Violins and cellos were whining, and there was a constant whimpering and tutting among the horns. A silence in air, very ugly, very badly dressed in some dusty, purplish material, ran her bony, clever hands across the strings of the harp and killed it with a touch of love. Two women behind Christine, also drowsy and ugly, were murmuring in exquisite French.

She had studied French conscientiously for almost four years, but she could not quite follow this liquid
chatter in undertones.

"Son chien aussi?" one voice finally said clearly in a silence. And the other made that indescribable
sound, that "hwan" that means
"yes."

"Oh, thank you—but don't trouble
—thank you so much."
It was a man's voice, English, this time, and the owner was settling into Ethel's seat beside her. Christine gave her neighbor a surprised look under cover of suddenly lowered lights. Where had she heard this voice before?

Handsome, well-groomed, with eyeglasses on a black ribbon, and a face that not only looked intelligent,
but that she knew was the manifestation of intelligence—but who was he? A little square, a little florid, radiating a sort of prosperity and content and interest in his surroundings—

Ah, of course! It was—what was his name? Dr. Montague, of the morning's lecture. He was caught in the city, between times, and he had come along to the box office just in time to pick up Ethel's ticket.

Christine opened her beaded bag
surprisingly and glanced within;
her fingers tumbled until the programme was uppermost, and she saw his name. Alan P. Montague, M.D.

RUBBER INDUSTRY THRIVES AMONGST STATES OF MALAY

S. D. O'Malley, Prominent Rubber Planter, Passes Through City

S. D. O'Malley, one of the best known and most influential of the rubber planters of the Malay Peninsula, was in this city last week, and left for the Orient aboard the N.K. steamship Kaga Maru. Before he left Victoria, Mr. O'Malley said that the rubber industry was at the present time passing through a crisis. The demand for rubber was immense, but there was an infinitely larger supply than was required, with a result that prices were lower than they should be.

The Malay States, said Mr. O'Malley, were ideal for the growth of rubber in fact. It was one of the greatest industries of the country. Rubber and tin were their biggest exports, and from these was the largest profit derived. Great Britain, said Mr. O'Malley, controlled in the East, approximately one-half of the world's rubber. About two-thirds of the world's tin was also mined by British companies and on British soil. The Malay Peninsula was rich in tin, he asserted, and the mines were a great and thriving industry, and consequently an immense asset to British capital, which controlled them.

The rubber plantations of the world were largely British owned, financed, or at least controlled. More than fifty per cent of them were actually British owned. The Malay plantations were amongst the largest and most coveted in the world. He himself, he said, planted over an area of two thousand acres, and there were many hundreds of laborers employed.

The Malay States supplied the markets of the world with a high-grade of rubber. Mr. O'Malley added, "He knew that markets wanted his and his neighbor's products, but prices were low and times were hard and the planters sold where they could get the best prices. These prices they endeavored to control by an association of the rubber planters, with its head office in London, England. Prices were fixed and settled when the annual yield was known. Although there was a mild competition there were never any price-slashing tactics which would mean ruin for one or other of the growers."

The planter admitted that South America, and indeed almost all parts of the world where rubber was grown, had their share of the world's markets, but he was assured that the product from the Malay States was possibly the highest grade of product which could be found. There is every indication of a particularly fine season ahead of the rubber growers. Mr. O'Malley said, and he was looking forward to a busy time after an eight months' vacation in England, Canada, the United States and other parts of the world. He was very agreeably impressed with Victoria, and although it was not the first time he had been here, he said that within the period which had elapsed between this and his last visit, there had been many changes, and growth in the city and in the surrounding hinterland was marked. "Victoria has an air of pleasing welcome and familiarity, very welcome to the stranger. I suppose the city gets it from constant contact with tourists and visitors from all parts of the world—America, the Orient and Australia. Your city is beautiful; of that there is no doubt. I have never seen anything to surpass it, unless, perhaps, it is Ireland," concluded Mr. O'Malley.

CALIFORNIA SHIPS QUARANTINE HERE

Epidemic in South Makes Pratique Compulsory For Inbound Vessels

In future, owing to an epidemic of pneumonia at San Pedro and Los Angeles, all vessels coming northwards to this port will be quarantined at William Head and given pratique before they are allowed to enter here. Even though vessels have called at San Francisco subsequent to the San Pedro call, they must put into William Head for examination and possible fumigation.

A smallpox epidemic in the South a short time ago made it necessary for all vessels northbound to call at quarantine here and it was only lately that orders for inspection were lifted. The ruler are now as strict as ever they were.

LUMBER SHIPMENTS REACH HIGH MARK

Increase to All Markets Except Australia and New Zealand

The Orient, the United Kingdom, South Africa and South America were heavy purchasers of British Columbia lumber in the first eight months of the present year, figures received by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce show. Increased shipments were made to all markets with the exception of Australia and New Zealand. Lumber shipments from the port of Vancouver for the first eight months, including that sent from Vancouver Island for shipment to the mainland port, amounted to 285,282,000 feet, as compared with 178,521,312 feet in 1923 and 196,972,515 feet in 1922.

CAPTAIN FOELLNER CALLED TO ENGLAND

Hudson's Bay Co. Building Another Boat to Replace Lady Kindersley

Capt. Gus Foellner, who shipped the ill-fated auxiliary schooner Lady Kindersley before it was lost in the Arctic Ocean this year with a cargo of furs and cargo aboard her, has been called to England. It is thought that he has been called for consultation and to give advice in the building of a new vessel which the Hudson's Bay Company is planning to construct for the Arctic service.

The Baymen, upon which Captain Foellner and some of the members of the crew of the Lady Kindersley came to land following their mishap in the North, will take over the summer run to the Northern ports next year. It is believed, however, that the new vessel will be ready for the 1925 season.

JAPANESE CUT BRITISH RATES FOR WOOL TRADE

Combine Making Bid to Capture Australian Wool Shipments For United Kingdom

Special to The Times
Sydney, Australia, Nov. 9.—Japanese shipowners are making a big attempt to secure the carrying trade in Australia, particularly the wool shipments to Europe.

Australia shipowners are alarmed and the newspapers are calling for legislation that will prevent foreign vessels carrying foreign cargo from competing with Australian ships. They point out that no foreign vessel can carry a ton of cargo between two Japanese ports and they urge the same for the Japanese goods.

"We are not building our new line in Australia," says one journal, "for the Japanese cuckoo to sit in."

Captain A. McNeil, in Aged Sailors' Home, Recreates Brave Craft

By Gene Cohn
Sailors' Home Harbor, N.Y., Nov. 10.—He is known as "the maker of lost ships."

Here where 800 old men of the sea have come to anchor awaiting the last ebbside, Capt. Alfred McNeil is chattering "Days" of ancient victories by seeking to immortalize brave craft that went to romantic death.

By so doing he has built up a one-man industry that brings him orders from the four corners of the globe. For most sailors' folk have more than a little of sentiment and there is some one ship that was their pride and love.

"Ship, like men, have short spans of life before the seas swallow them or the rocks break them. Such ships are like lost children to their masters."

Thus philosophizes the old Scottish skipper whose aged but adept fingers piece together replicas of brigantines, barquentines, schooners—all the sailing ship types known to the seven seas.

For these he gets $150 and up. "It started when I made models of ships which I once had sailed, but which had been lost," explains Capt. McNeil, who for more than forty years has spent his life on the water.

Some of the best boats I ever sailed on were on the old, he says. So in the little hours of the old sailors' home Capt. McNeil dreams of the ships of his youth and soon with wood and string he was fashioning them again. Not a detail had escaped his memory.

The finished products were hailed as masterpieces by the saltmen and his reputation spread across the country. Then he began to pattern the lost ships of other shipowners until now his unique industry is producing as fast as aged hands can carry on the work.

He will not work to order, however, for he knows his ships and the finished model must be such that it shall rise as worth to some skipper somewhere. And maybe the fortunes lost when his ships went down may some day be partially recovered, thanks to their miniature ghosts.

WARSHIP TO VISIT THIS PORT SOON

CRUISER ASAMA
one of the ships of the Japanese training squadron which left Yokohama to-day and which will be in this port on or about February 6. The Asama, with two other vessels, the Izumo and Yakumo, comprise the squadron.

TRAINING VESSELS LEFT JAPAN TO-DAY FOR THIS COAST

Three Ships of Japanese Navy Clear From Yokosuka To-day

Tokyo, Nov. 10.—Three first-class coast defence ships—the Izumo, Yakumo and Asama—carrying naval cadets, left Yokosuka to-day on a training cruise to the Hawaiian Islands and North and South American ports.

Yokosuka is the Japanese naval base, where the ships of the training squadron have been preparing for their cruise of the Pacific waters. The vessels are expected here on February 6.

The route set out by the Government for the ships to follow is: Honolulu, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver. The squadron is commanded by Admiral S. Morikawa.

The combined tonnage of the ships is 29,000 tons, and they carry 1,483 officers and men, 112 guns and 14 torpedoes.

EMPRESS OF ASIA DELAYED BY WILD STORM ON PACIFIC

Canadian Pacific Vessel Late in Arriving First Time in Months

For the first time this year the Empress of Asia is behind time on her trip across the Pacific from Yokohama to this port.

Her usual train-like schedule has been interrupted. The giant of the Canadian Pacific ocean service is hours late in arriving here. Last night shortly before 8 p.m., after fighting through heavy weather practically throughout her entire trip, the steamship was 573 miles from Victoria, steaming hard for this port.

The Quarantine Station expects the ship to-night.

It is understood here that the ship carries a large and varied cargo, including a valuable silk consignment, and a large number of passengers. There will be a disbandment of some of her number at Victoria, and a portion of freight and mail will also be dropped here.

Pacific weather has been anything but satisfactory from the navigators' point of view during the last few weeks. Storms have raged along the coast for days, intermittently. The inbound ships have encountered strong winds and gales, wild seas and rain and sleet, and the Empress of Asia has proved no exception.
